Rule 216: Leasing ABGA Bucks and Does

The owner of an ABGA registered animal may lease that animal to another breeder by completing a lease document. In the case of a partnership doe lease, or a lease to more than one person, the lessees may divide the ownership of the resulting offspring, and each may use their individual herd prefix to name the offspring in their ownership. All lessees will be recorded as the breeder of any offspring conceived during the lease period. When leases of bucks are in effect, the lessee(s) is authorized to sign service memos for offspring conceived during the lease period.

- An ABGA lease form or acceptable lease document must be submitted to the ABGA office in order for the lessee to register goats or sign for buck services.
- Registration and transfers of offspring from leased parent(s) are subjected to current registration and transfer requirements and fees.
